TRAINING REPORT

On 18/01/2021, a soft skills training program was organized for students aiming to enhance their interpersonal and communication skills. The program was conducted with the objective of equipping students with essential soft skills required for their personal and professional development.

Training Overview:

The training program covered various aspects of soft skills, including communication, teamwork, time management, leadership, and emotional intelligence. It included interactive sessions, group activities, role-plays, and real-life case studies to help students understand and apply the concepts effectively.

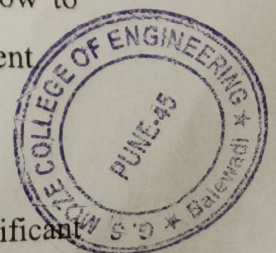

Key Learnings:

Throughout the training program, students learned the importance of effective communication skills in building relationships, resolving conflicts, and presenting ideas confidently. They also gained insights into the significance of teamwork in achieving common goals and how to collaborate with others effectively.

Furthermore, the training program emphasized the importance of time management and prioritization in balancing academic and personal commitments. Students were introduced to leadership qualities and how to demonstrate leadership in various situations. They also learned about emotional intelligence and how to regulate their emotions for better decision-making and relationship management.

Outcome:

At the end of the training program, students demonstrated a significant improvement in their soft skills. They were able to communicate more clearly and confidently, work effectively in teams, manage their time more efficiently, demonstrate leadership qualities, and handle emotional situations with maturity.

Feedback:

The feedback received from students regarding the soft skills training program was overwhelmingly positive. They appreciated the interactive and practical approach of the training, which allowed them to apply the concepts in real-life situations. Many students expressed gratitude for the valuable skills they acquired and how they believe it will benefit them in their academic and professional endeavors.

Conclusion:

Overall, the soft skills training program was a resounding success in equipping students with essential interpersonal and communication skills. It provided them with the necessary tools to navigate personal and professional challenges effectively. It is recommended to continue organizing such training programs to further enhance students' soft skills and prepare them for future success.

The college effectively organized the session, which drew the participation of 45 students.
